Looks like the Brookville relief fund would reach the fifteen hundred mark. The first mark set was a thousand dollars. That was passed with ease today.

The contributions of today did not equal those of yesterday. The total added today amounted to $265, bringing the fund up to the amazing total of $1,151.19.

The fund will be closed Monday. This was determined as the closing day so that Sunday would be included and the Sunday schools would be given an opportunity to contribute if they saw fit.

It is the belief of those in charge of the fund that every one will have had ample time to give money to aid Brookville sufferers by Monday. The fund has been open a week and has made unexpected strides. It has reached a mark beyond the hopes of the most optimistic. People may prepare themselves to make the final decision in this regard because Monday will be their last opportunity.

It is felt that by this time the news of the amazing success of the fund will have reached the ears of almost every person in Rush county and that they will put the question up to themselves whether or not they can afford to help the suffering people of Brookville.

"I never was as proud of good old Rushville in my life as I was last night when I picked up the Daily Republican and read that $400 had been subscribed yesterday and that the amount was almost $900," said a Rushville man this morning. "I felt that Rushville would rally bravely to the dejected Brookville people. We will never regret that we did this. Rather we will all remember it until our last days on earth."

Benefits are still being planned for the fund, some of which will be announced later. The Princess theater will give a benefit Friday night. Walter Easley, the owner, said today that several people had told him they were not coming because they did not suppose they could get seats but that they would send their money anyway.

The Tri Kappas will hold an exchange Saturday and the L. A. of the A. O. H. gave a euchre party this afternoon for the fund.

"This is real benevolence," said a Rushville man this morning. "It is the kind that counts. Our neighbors in Franklin county are down and out. It is an impossibility for them to recover from the blow they have received."

"We give money for other things many times because of a kind of selfish pride. We give money to a

H. E. BARRETT LOSES OUT

City Attorney Does Not Get on Public Service Commission.

Governor Ralston late yesterday announced his appointments to the public service commission, which will be created by the act that will become effective May 1. Howard E. Barrett, city attorney, was a candidate for one of the appointments, but his name does not appear among the list. Mr. Barrett was receiving condolences from his Democratic friends in the court house this afternoon. Further details of the appointments will be found on page three of today's issue.

BROOKVILLE IS THANKFUL FOR AID

G. M. Personett Here Today, Says
His City Will Rise, Thanks to The Kindness of Neighbors.

TELLS OF FLOOD TERRORS

G. M. Personett, a lumber dealer of Fairfield, near Brookville, who was in Rushville today, said that it would be a month and possibly more before rail connections between Brookville and the outer world are established.

"Give us a railroad," said Mr. Personett, "and we will get our heads above water, with all the help you kind neighbors are giving us. We are greatly handicapped because of the condition of shipping facilities."

Mr. Personett said that it was impossible to realize the damage that had been done and the agony that had been caused unless one saw the place the morning after the flood. He told of women, with infants in their arms, sitting astride housetops with their feet in the water. He said all of the barns and small buildings in that part of Brookville touched by the flood were swept away.

ARE REPAIRING DAMAGE TO ROADS

Supervisors Busy on Pikes and Make Immediate Reconstruction—Not Necessary to Advertise.

COMES UNDER ROAD REPAIRS

The damage to roads in this county by the recent flood is being repaired as rapidly as possible and most of the smaller bridges that were washed out are again back in place. The work of repairing was not subject to the usual delay in advertising for bids as is usually done when the county has any work to be done.

The only bridges that can not be placed without first advertising for bids are those that cost over $200. County work over this sum must be advertised and bids awarded. Only a few bridges and roads that were damaged will cost the county over this sum. The township supervisors have been busy since the flood and a majority of the roads are again in order.

The county commissioners under the law are not only empowered, but are directed to make immediate repairs of roads which are mail routes. One road that will have to be advertised is the highway near Moscow.

ANXIOUS ABOUT TURNING SOIL

Farmers of Rush County are Much
Farther Behind with Spring
Work than Usual.

FLOOD THE CAUSE, OF COURSE

Ground so Wet the Last Two Weeks
It Has Been Impossible to Do Usual Tasks.

These are anxious hours for the farmers of Rush county. The flood has put them at a disadvantage that is likely to affect them throughout the summer.

The principal trouble is that they are unable to break ground for their oats and corn crops. There has been very little oats sowed up to this time. The entire crop should have been in the ground two or three weeks ago.

Ordinarily Rush county farmers have their breaking for corn well under way by this time. This year there is practically no ground broken for corn except that which was turned over last fall, and the amount of that is small.

The farmers have not been able to turn a furrow for two weeks, and that is a most serious loss of time at this season. A little plowing was done along about the middle of March, but since then the ground has been so full of water that working in it has been impossible.

Practically all farmers say they can not remember a year in which they were as far behind with their spring work as they are this year. Most of them, though, are keeping cheerful. They say that they have got late starts many times before, but always managed to grow fair crops. They say there is still plenty of time to get the ground ready for corn, if the rains will stay away, but feel that it is getting too late to sow oats.

The farmers have not been saying much about their losses from the Easter storms and flood, feeling that they got off fortunately as compared with many of the people in cities, but the storm and flood brought some measure of loss to many of them. Many lost fencing and wood, and a considerable number of live stock.

RECEIVES CALL FOR AID

W. H. Wylie Has a Letter From Lawrenceburg M. E. Pastor.

The Rev. W. H. Wylie, pastor of the St. Paul M. E. church, has received a letter from the Rev. C. D. Wilson, pastor of the Lawrenceburg M. E. church, telling of the conditions there. Not a house was out of the water and many of them were entirely washed away, the letter says. "We are not," he states, "in our crippled condition, able to take care of the suffering in our midst. My official members requested me to write some of my friends in the Indiana conference and solicit aid. If your hands are not full with your own poor, help us a little."

ONE IN POLICE COURT.

Cary Patterson of Manilla pleaded guilty to the charge of public intoxication this morning in police court was fined one dollar and costs, amounting to eleven dollars which was stayed. Patterson was found last evening near the Pennsylvania station. Patterson is the first to be arrested for intoxication since the city voted "dry." He told the officials that he secured his liquor in Shelbyville.

CITY WATER IS TO BE TESTED

Secretary of Health Board Announces Examination For Flood Infection Will be Made.

UPHOLDS HIS OWN OPINION

Advise Not to Boil Water Was Given
Without Sanction of Other Board Members.

Dr. J. G. Lewis, secretary of the city board of health, announced this afternoon, in a statement, that water from the city mains would be tested to see if it had been infected when flood water was pumped into the mains by the wells in the bottom land between the mill race and the river.

Although the opinion has been expressed that the safest method to be pursued would be to have water tested, the health board never took such a step until today. The secretary first warned against using water without boiling, and then a few days ago he stated through the press that he believed it was safe to use the water without boiling.

In his statement, Dr. Lewis supports his own position, and admits this his published belief was not sanctioned by the other members of the health board, Dr. D. D. VanOsdol and Dr. H. V. Logan.

Several Rushville physicians were interviewed this morning, which was before the intention of the board had been made public. They were unanimous in the opinion that the only thing to do to protect the public health was to have the water examined. Under no circumstances, they said, should people be told that they should use the water before boiling it, because, acting under such advice, they might endanger their lives.

"If the water in the city mains were not contaminated," one physician said, "I can not conceive of any way of contaminating it. The flood water was most surely pumped into the mains. A mistake was made in the first place in leaving those wells open so that water from outside could enter them. It might have been guessed that water night cover the tops of those wells in seasons of floods because the ground on which they are located is low and they stand only a few feet above the ground."

"In my opinion, samples of water should be taken from the mains at eight or ten different points and examined. Then the wells should be pumped for several hours, I should say, and the water thrown out on the ground, if that is possible, before they are connected to the mains. It is impossible to tell just when the disease might crop out. The only sure way of finding out is to test the water."

The statement issued by Dr. Lewis follows:

"Concerning the water situation will say the city is supplied by water at the present time from a reservoir at the water plant. The supply has never at any time been infected and is good to use for domestic purposes. The only possible source of infection or pollution of the water is in the southeastern part of the city where water was pumped directly into the mains from the wells in that part of the city, which wells were overflowed and, if pumped, would pump whatever of flood water that would settle in these wells down to the end of the suspended pipe which is the intake."

"Now outside of this there is no possibility of infecting the city's water supply and this was in the mains with forty or more pounds

WEATHER SPOILED DAY

Clean-up Will be Made Later When Ground Dries Off.

The weather man spoiled Rushville's clean-up day yesterday. The city authorities did not think it would be wise for the wagons to make the rounds when the rain was falling so steadily. Mayor Black said this afternoon that the city wagons would not make the trips over the city for trash and debris until the weather had cleared and the ground had dried. Many people were unable to do the cleaning up they desired and it was feared that many would be missed. The trash must be in some sort of a receptacle before the city wagons will haul it away.

REFUSES NEW TRIAL IN MANNING CASE

Judge Megee Overrules Motion and Attorneys For Insurance Company Will Take an Appeal.

ONE SUIT IS DISMISSED

With the Gardner drain case out of the way it was rather quiet in court today. The case of Alpheus Walker against the Adams Express company for damages demanding $150 was dismissed by the plaintiff and the costs paid. Judge Megee overruled a motion for a new trial in the case of William E. Manning, administrator of the estate of Maxie Manning, deceased, against the Public Savings Insurance Company of America. Attorneys for the defendant company gave notice that they would appeal the case and 30 days were granted in which to take the case to the appellate court. The appeal bond was fixed at $500.

The court granted a petition of Charles Ferguson against Richard E. Brown for the restoration of sanity. Ferguson is the sheriff of Fayette county and is the guardian of Brown. Brown was an inmate of the Madison asylum and the purpose of the suit was to end the guardianship.

ENUMERATION TO BE STARTED SOON

Annual Count Will be Made in Each Township and School Corporation in the County.

The enumeration of the school children of Rushville and Rush county will be begun during the later part of the week or the first of next and will be completed by the last of the month. According to the law the enumerators are given twenty days to do the work, the dates being between April 10 and 30.

All of the trustees of the county were given their supplies and instructions at the regular meeting of the board of education last Monday. In most of the townships the trustees will do the work and in the corporations the work will be under the supervision of the secretaries of the school boards.

The city school board has appointed Mrs. L. E. Wallace of this city to take the enumeration in the Rushville school corporation.

FLOOD TO MAKE NO DIFFERENCE

State Tax Board Issues Order That Values Shall Not be Lowered in Making Assessments.

RECOURSE TO THE COUNTIES

Attitude to be Assumed by Taxing
Officials is Explicitly Set Out in Statement.

The state board of tax commissioners has issued a statement to all assessing officers of the state, following a conference with the Governor. The statement commands the officers to assess all property at the valuations which would have pertained if no flood conditions in the state had existed. The recourse of property owners, damaged by the tremendous throughout the state, will then be through the county auditors' offices, according to the statement of the board.

The attitude to be assumed by the assessing officials is explicitly set out in the statement. Uniformity of such assessments also is desired. This section of the taxation statutes, setting out that all personal property is to be listed between March 1 and May 15 of each year and that the value of all such property assessment is made, is pointed out by the commissioners. Subsequent damage or loss to the property is not to be considered by the assessors, the statement asserts.

"In all cases where buildings or personal property shall be destroyed, in whole or in part, by unavoidable casualty, after being assessed for the year, and such loss is not covered by insurance, the county auditor shall, upon sworn proof of such loss, allow a rebate of such proportion of the taxes for that year as that part of the year which shall remain, for such destruction bears to the whole year," the commissioners quoted from another statute.

The attempt to make uniform the assessments throughout the state and to place in the hands of the county auditors of the state and rebating for flood losses will save the state and counties thousands of dollars, if it is successful, the commissioners believe.

(Ball Bearing—Long Wearing)

In buying a typewriter you want a satisfactory answer to three questions:

What will it do for me?
How well will it do it?
How long will it do it?

By answering these queries with the needs of the typewriter owner and user in mind, the L. C. Smith & Bros. Typewriter Company has attained the front rank in the typewriter field.

Some people think that a typewriter is a typewriter and that is all there is to it. Machines may look alike but there is a lot of difference in efficiency.

The new Model Five is built not only for straight correspondence but for tabulating, billing and in fact for every service needed in the average business.

Its ball bearings at all points where friction develops through action, permit close adjustment and insure correct and accurate typewriting.

AMUNDSEN HAS BIG JOB AHEAD OF HIM

Arctic Explorer Planning for a Daring Journey.

Washington, April 10.—It has subscribed $20,000, the National Geographic society announces, to assist the expedition of Captain Raold Amundsen, the Arctic explorer, who will leave San Francisco in June, 1914, in a daring attempt to traverse the frozen polar regions of northern Canada, Alaska and the Asiatic coast.

Amundsen in his ship Fram, presented to him by the Norwegian government, will sail from San Francisco north to Bering strait, where he will allow his vessel to be frozen in the ice, to drift as the current carries him across the unexplored regions, passing close to or through the north pole area into European waters. The explorer will be icebound for four years, calculating to reach a haven in 1918.

From a scientific standpoint the proposed trip is one of the most noteworthy in history. If successful it will open to the world knowledge of millions of miles of unknown Arctic territory and will settle the question of a polar current that has defied scientists since the first expeditions into the polar regions.

While he is imprisoned in the ice floes Amundsen will take soundings, magnetic observations and meteorological records with a view to solving the exact cause of the storms which, originating in the frozen north, sweep southward with such violence.

The Fram will be equipped with a complete powerless wireless outfit and from time to time will send out messages of progress and discoveries hoping the vibrations will be picked up by whalers or ships traversing the northern seas.

MISSISSIPPI IS MENACING

Giant River Going Out of Its Banks
Below Memphis.

Memphis, Tenn., April 10.—The St. Francis river levee broke at a point one mile below Wilson, Ark., and soon a stream 150 feet wide was running through the crevasse and rapidly widening. No loss of life is reported. Other weak spots have developed and the water has overtopped the levee at several points. These breaks above Memphis will relieve Memphis temporarily, but torrential rains throughout central, northern and eastern Arkansas and rapid rises expected from the Ohio river and the upper Mississippi tributaries, will bring another flood on top of the present one and fears are entertained for levees being broken through the entire St. Francis river system.

The gauge here already has registered 1.1 higher than the previous high water mark of 1912.

THIS BODY HAS
LARGE POWERS

Governor Names Public Utilities Commission.

ONLY THREE NEW MEMBERS

Under the Provisions of the Act Creating Public Service Commission in This State, the Two Members of the Indiana Railroad Commission Whose Terms Have Not Expired Are Continued in Office.

Indianapolis, April 10.—The members of the new public service commission, which is to begin its duties May 1, have been named by Governor Ralston.

Thomas Duncan, Democrat, of Princeton, and James L. Clark, Republican, of Danville, were appointed to serve four years, and the two-year term goes to Charles J. Murphy, Democrat, of Brookston. John F. McClure, Republican, of Anderson, three more years to serve, and Frank E. Payne, Democrat, of Jeffersonville, two more years to serve.

The two members of the railroad commission of Indiana whose terms have not expired are continued in office, under the utility commission act, as the fourth and fifth members of the public service commission.

Burt New, legal clerk to Governor Ralston, will be the general counsel and will serve in the dual capacity of legal adviser of both the governor and the commission. His salary will be boosted from $3,600, which he now receives as legal clerk, to $6,000, the same salary to be paid members of the commission. Mr. McClure and Mr. Payne also will receive increased salaries in return for increased duties under the new law. As members of the railroad commission they have received $4,000 annually.

Mr. Duncan will be the chairman of the commission. He was appointed as successor to W. J. Wood, chairman of the railroad commission, whose term, it so happens, expires May 1, the date on which the utility act takes effect. Mr. Wood will retire after having served eight years as a member of the railroad commission. Mr. Duncan is one of the leading lawyers of Gibson county.

Powers of Commission.

Under the Shively-Spencer public service commission law, the new commission has all the powers conferred by the railroad commission law in addition to those conferred by the new statute.

Public utilities coming under the public service commission's control and regulation are the interurbans, the heat, light and power concerns, street railway corporations, telegraph and telephone companies, water companies and warehouse and elevator companies. Steam railroads are not defined as public utilities, but continue under regulatory laws already in existence. Utilities in future must be organized under Indiana law.

The law provides for the valuation of all public utilities by the new commission. It is provided that the physical valuation found by the interstate commerce commission in the cases of interstate roads, steam or electricity, may be accepted by the Indiana commission. The law provides for the ultimate purchase of utilities by cities. It provides for an indeterminate permit to take the place of an old franchise grant at the option of the utility. It provides against stock watering and for publicity of stocks issued for less than par. It provides for the regulation of mergers, for the protection of utilities against competition where the field is inadequately served. It calls for depreciation funds, for control of refunding bond issues, for control of rates, tolls, charges and service, for a uniform system of accounting, for reports to the commission and for inspections, hearings and the enforcement of orders.

Appeals are given from the final orders of the commission to local courts and to the appellate and supreme courts.

KEEPING HER LOCKED UP

Mrs. Pankhurst Will Not Be Able to Address Big Meeting Tonight.

London, April 10.—Several thousand people gathered around Holloway jail last night in the expectation that Mrs. Pankhurst would be released, but they were disappointed. One suffragette who was arrested for obstructing the police had a loaded revolver in her possession.

It is stated that Mrs. Pankhurst today is showing signs of weakness due to her hunger strike. It is not now expected that she will be released before tomorrow, and this will prevent her vaunted appearance at the suffragette meeting at Albert hall tonight.

A haystack was burned at Wollaton, in Nottinghamshire. The usual suffragette papers were found nearby. The hay, which was valued at $500, was the total crop of a widow's small holding.

CUSTOMS SERVICE IN
FOR AN OVERHAULING

Criminal Prosecutions Are Threatened.

Washington, April 10.—With the likelihood of the removal of officers in many ports and the introduction of "new blood" into the service, a sweeping investigation of the entire customs service is being put under way by Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo. This became known when the secretary accepted the resignations of four of the highest officials at the port of Philadelphia, which had been demanded. These are Chester W. Hill, collector; Perry M. Lytle, surveyor; Fred P. Vincent, appraiser, and Walter T. Merrick, naval officer.

Secretary McAdoo denied that the removal of the officials at Philadelphia was due in any way to frauds, although it is understood that he held that the situation there was found to be deplorable and that business was being conducted in a very unsatisfactory manner. The secretary declined to make any explanation of this action further than to say it was deemed essential that these places shall be filled by persons who are in sympathy with the purposes and policies of the administration.

Senators and others with whom Secretary McAdoo has discussed the customs service find that he is not at all satisfied with it. Many of the more important policies of the last administration are not at all to his liking. Mr. McAdoo makes it plain that criminal prosecutions will be made wherever warranted.

Admiral Eaton's Will.

Boston, April 10.—The will of Rear Admiral Joseph G. Eaton, for whose death his wife is now under indictment charged with murder, has been filed in the probate court of Plymouth county. With the exception of small bequests, Admiral Eaton left his estate to his wife.

Tariff Bill in Caucus.

Washington, April 10.—The reading of the Underwood tariff bill was begun in the caucus yesterday. At the meeting today discussion of the bill was continued and indications are that consideration of the measure in caucus will not be concluded until Saturday.

Knightstown Druggist, Found Guilty

Two Weeks Ago, Will be Tried on Other Charges.

COMMITMENT IS ISSUED

A commitment for Vern Wink, the Knightstown druggist, found guilty two weeks ago in the Henry circuit court of violating the liquor laws, was issued Tuesday on order of Judge Ed. Jackson, says the Newcastle Star. The paper was turned over to Sheriff K. K. Kirk and will probably be served today.

The issuance of the commitment is the result of the failure of Wink to pay the costs in the case against him. He was released from the custody of the sheriff after conviction and after he had paid the fine with the understanding that he would pay the costs within a few days. He failed to come forward with the required money.

Typhoid in Rushville.

The city health board persists in giving the people of Rushville a chance to take typhoid fever, and other doctors in Rushville say that in order to prevent a possible epidemic here, the water from the city mains should be tested for the presence of typhoid germs before people cease boiling it.

It should be remembered this editorial was written after the secretary of the city health board this afternoon announced the city water would be tested. He still contends, however, it is his personal opinion that it is safe to use the water without boiling.

Dr. J. G. Lewis, secretary of the city health board, admits that flood water could have been pumped into the city mains. When he found the water was yellow the morning after the flood, he ordered a warning issued. He was told by the city council that it was impossible for flood water to be pumped into the mains. Dr. Lewis examined one well and found that flood water COULD be pumped into the city mains.

Yet on top of all this preponderance of evidence, he announces that he does not think it necessary for people using the city water for domestic purposes to boil it. Doctors tell us typhoid fever will not make its presence known under ten days after the germ has found lodgement in a human system, and that it may be as long as twenty-three days before the presence of the germ is discovered. Even after it begins its deadly work, the patient may postpone his visit to the doctor for a week or ten days.

But only fifteen days elapsed since the flood water was seen in the city water by the city health board secretary, and he tells us there is no necessity of boiling the water before using it. Is that precaution enough?

Of course there is a way in which it can be determined whether or not there were any typhoid germs swept into the city mains by the flood. If the water was infected, it will be known in due time when a deadly epidemic crops out and some Rushville people have to pay for the negligence of the health board with their lives. Is it worth while to take any chances?

Better still, the water could have been tested long ago and we of Rushville would now know its condition. It would have been very simple to send two or three containers full of the water to the State board of health for examination. The cost would have been very small, merely express on the containers sent here and express for the water being sent back to Indianapolis.

Doctors advise that people should continue to boil water for at least thirty days after the date it was believed to have been infected. Still other physicians declare that the only safe and sure method is to have the water tested. If, within thirty days after the flood water is supposed to have entered the mains, no cases of typhoid fever developed, it is safe to drink the water without boiling, others argue.

There is no doubt but what some care should be used in protecting public health. It is the health officer's duty. If he can not go to the trouble of having water tested, he might at least warn the people against using the city water without boiling until a sufficient time afterwards when the danger has apparently passed. Flood water might have been pumped into the mains and there may be no typhoid germs. But who cares to chance his life when the means of preventions are so simple and easy?

Typhoid fever is a disease that is not to be trifled with. Its carriers are many and its work deadly. Dr. Osler, a recognized medical authority, in his latest work, tells something of the disease.

He says the infection of water is the common source of widespread epidemics of the disease. He cites the very striking example at Plymouth, Pa. The town, with a population of 8,000, was in part supplied with drinking water from a reservoir fed by a mountain stream. During January, February and March, in a cottage by the side of and at a distance for sixty to eighty feet from this stream, a man was ill with typhoid fever. The attendants were in the habit at night of throwing out the evacuations on the ground toward the stream. During these months the ground was frozen and covered with snow. In the latter part of March and early in April there was considerable rainfall and a thaw, in which a large part of the three months' accumulation of discharges was washed into a brook not sixty feet distant. At the very time of this thaw the patient had numerous and copious discharges. About the tenth of April cases of typhoid fever broke out in the town, appearing for a time at the rate of fifty a day. In all about twelve hundred people were attacked. An immense majority of all these cases were in the part of the town which received water from the injected reservoir.

factory as an investment. We expect something in return. In this instance we can expect nothing. All the result we can anticipate is some kind of a good feeling that we have done our share in helping a neighbor up. This is truly benevolence."

It should not be forgotten that the fund of more than a thousand dollars is a free will offering. No soliciting has been done to cause the fund to reach the astounding total it has already reached.

This should be remembered when anyone contemplates helping with what he thinks is his share. If he thinks enough of the effort that is being made to help the people of Brookville to go to the trouble to write a check and mail it to the Daily Republican, or to bring a cash contribution or a check to the office, then he will have done his part. So far as is known no influence is being brought to bear and the fund represents what Rushville and Rush county people feel they would do for their neighbors. After all it is largely a matter of conscience.

Several automobile loads of bed clothing have been received and many more people have reported gifts that yet have to be called for. So long as the weather remains as it is today, it will be impossible for an automobile to make the trip from here to Brookville. As soon as the weather clears, several automobiles will point their noses toward Brookville with the good wishes of many Rushville and Rush county people. R. G. Budd offered the services of his machine this morning to haul bedclothing to Brookville, and it will be used, because thus far only two auto owners have offered to help. Many more will be needed, from present indications, because it is not possible to estimate how much bedclothing will be sent in. People who have not already donated are requested to call the Daily Republican office at once. If they have no way of bringing or sending their donations to the office, they will be called for.

Since arrangements have been made for the I. & C. to haul heavy household furniture to Connersville free of charge, it is expected that many more pieces will be donated. Several people have announced that they had some household furniture they would like to give, but they withheld the giving of it until some satisfactory arrangement for conveying it to Brookville was made. Brookville people will haul the shipment by the I. & C. from Connersville to their homes.

I. & C. OFFERS AID.

At last a way out of the difficulty has been found. The managers of the Brookville fund were at a loss to know how to convey furniture and hardware to Brookville. The Indianapolis & Cincinnati Traction company has voluntarily offered to ship these things to Connersville free of charge and Brookville will provide a way to take them from there. Several pieces of household furniture and three stoves by the hardware merchants have already been contributed, and many more things of this sort are expected since a means is provided. Call the Daily Republican office.

Farmers are more in evidence in the giving every day. D. O. Alter of Orange township drove several miles through the rain yesterday afternoon to come to Rushville and bring bed clothing and a cash donation of five dollars.

New Salem people, who are in charge of the contribution being made there, announced this morning over the telephone that their gift had been increased from three barrels of bed clothing to four barrels and a box, and that probably another barrel would be filled by Saturday. Just as soon as the rain ceases their donations will be brought here.

Edward Kelley has filed suit against Bert Osborn on an account demanding $75.

It was several minutes before he heard Mr. Brotherson's voice again, then it was in triumphant repetition of the lines which had escaped his memory. They were great words surely and Sweetwater never forgot them, but the impression which they made upon his mind, an impression so forcible that he was able to repeat them, months afterward to Mr. Gryce, did not prevent him from noting the tone in which they were uttered, nor the thud which followed as the book was thrown down upon the floor.

"Fool!" The word rang out in bitter irony from his irate neighbor's lips. "What does he know of woman! Woman! Let him court a rich one and see—but that's all over and done with. No more harping on that string, and no more reading of poetry. I'll never—" The rest was lost in his throat and was quite unintelligible to the anxious listener.

Self-revealing words, which an instant before would have aroused Sweetwater's deepest interest! But they had suddenly lost all force for the unhappy listener. The sight of that hole still shining brightly before his eyes had distracted his thoughts and roused his liveliest apprehensions. If that book should be allowed to lie where it had fallen, then he was in for a period of uncertainty he shrank from contemplating. Any moment his neighbor might look up and catch sight of the hole bored in the backing of the shelves before him. Could the man who had been guilty of submitting him to this outrage stand the strain of waiting indefinitely for the moment of discovery? He doubted it, if the suspense lasted too long.

Shifting his position, he placed his eye where his ear had been. He could see very little. The space before him, limited as it was to the width of the one volume withdrawn, precluded his seeing aught by what lay directly before him. Happily, it was in this narrow line of vision that Mr. Brotherson stood. He had resumed work upon his model and was so placed that while his face was not visible, his hands were, and as Sweetwater watched these hands and noticed the delicacy of their manipulation, he was enough of a workman to realize that work so fine called for an undivided attention. He need not fear the gaze shifting, while those hands moved as warily as they did now.

Relieved for the moment, he left his post and, sitting down on the edge of his cot, gave himself up to thought. Suddenly he started upright. He would go meet his fate—be present in the room itself when the discovery was made which threatened to upset all his plans. He was not ashamed of his calling, and Brotherson would think twice before attacking him when once convinced that he had the department back of him.

"Excuse me, comrade," were the words with which he endeavored to account for his presence at Brotherson's door. "My lamp smells so, and I've made such a mess of my work today that I've just stepped in for a chat. If I'm not wanted, say so. I'd like a big room like this, and a lot of books, and—and pictures."

"Look at them, then. I like to see a man interested in books. Only, I thought if you knew how to handle wire, I would get you to hold this end while I work with the other."

"I guess I know enough for that," was Sweetwater's gay rejoinder. But when he felt that communicating wire in his hand and experienced for the first time the full influence of the other's eye, it took all his hardihood to hide the hypnotic thrill it gave him. He found himself gazing long and earnestly at this man's hand, and wondering if death lay under it. It was a strong hand, a deft, clean-cut member, formed to respond to the slightest hint from the powerful brain controlling it. But was this its whole story. Had he said all when he had said this?

Lytle's Drug Store. Rushville.

Fascinated by the question, Sweetwater died a hundred deaths in his awakened fancy, as he followed the sharp, short instructions which fell with cool precision from the other's lips. A hundred deaths, I say, but with no betrayal of his folly. The anxiety he showed was that of one eager to please, which may explain why on the conclusion of his task, Mr. Brotherson gave him one of his infrequent smiles and remarked, as he buried the model under its cover, "You're handy and you're quiet at your job. Who knows but what I shall want you again. Will you come if I call you?"

"Won't I?" was the gay retort, as the detective, thus released, stooped for the book still lying on the floor. "Paolo and Francesca," he read, from the back, as he laid it on the table. "Poetry?" he queried.

"Rot," scornfully returned the other, as he moved to take down a bottle and some glasses from a cupboard let into another portion of the wall. Sweetwater, taking advantage of the moment, sidled towards the shelf where that empty space still gaped with the tell-tale hole at the back. He could easily have replaced the missing book before Mr. Brotherson turned. But the issue was too doubtful. He was dealing with no absent-minded fool, and it behooved him to avoid above all things calling attention to the book or to the place on the shelf where it belonged.

But there was one thing he could do and did. Reaching out a finger as deft as Brotherson's own, he pushed a second volume into the place of the one that was gone. This veiled the auger-hole completely; a fact which so entirely relieved his mind that his old smile came back like sunshine to his lips, and it was only by a distinct effort that he kept the dancing humor from his eyes as he prepared to refuse the glass which Brotherson now brought forward:

"None of that!" said he. "You mustn't tempt me. The doctor has shut down on all kinds of spirits for two months more, at least. But don't let me hinder you. I can bear to smell the stuff. My turn will come again some day."

But Brotherson did not drink. Setting down the glass he carried, he took up the book lying near, weighed it in his hand and laid it down again, with an air of thoughtful inquiry. Then he suddenly pushed it towards Sweetwater. "Do you want it?" he asked.

Sweetwater was too taken aback to answer immediately. This was a move he did not understand. Want it, he? What he wanted was to see it put back in its place on the shelf. Did Brotherson suspect this? The supposition was incredible; yet who could read a mind so mysterious?

Sweetwater, debating the subject, decided that the risk of adding to any such possible suspicion was less to be dreaded than the continued threat offered by that unoccupied space so near the hole which testified so unmistakably of the means he had taken to spy upon this suspected man's privacy. So, after a moment of awkward silence, not out of keeping with the character he had assumed, he calmly refused the present as he had the glass.

Unhappily he was not rewarded by seeing the despised volume restored to its shelf. It still lay where its owner had pushed it, when, with some awkwardly muttered thanks, the discomfited detective withdrew to his own room.

CHAPTER XVIII.

What Am I to Do Now?
Early morning saw Sweetwater peering into the depths of his closet. The hole was hardly visible. This meant that the book he had pushed across it from the other side had not been removed.

Mr. Brotherson's bed was in a remote corner from the loop-hole made by Sweetwater; but in the stillness now pervading the whole building, the latter could hear his even breathing very distinctly. He was in a deep sleep.

The young detective's moment had come.

Taking from his breast a small box, he placed it on a shelf close against the partition. An instant of quiet listening, then he touched a spring in the side of the box and laid his ear, in haste, to his loop-hole.

A strain of well-known music broke softly from the box and sent its vibrations through the wall.

It was answered instantly by a stir within; then, as the noble air continued, awakening memories of that fatal instant when it crashed through the corridors of the Hotel Clermont, drowning Miss Challoner's cry if not the sound of her fall, a word burst from the sleeping man's lips which carried its own message to the listening detective.

It was Edith! Miss Challoner's first name, and the tone bespoke a shaken soul.

Sweetwater, gasping with excitement, caught the box from the shelf and silenced it. It had done its work and it was no part of Sweetwater's plan to have this strain located, or even to be thought real. But its echo still lingered in Brotherson's otherwise unconscious ears; for another "Edith!" escaped his lips, followed by a smothered but forceful utterance of these words, "You know I promised you—"

Promised her what? He did not say. Would he have done so had the music lasted a trifle longer? Would he yet complete his sentence? Sweetwater trembled with eagerness and listened breathlessly for the next sound. Brotherson was awake. He was tossing in his bed. Now he has leaped to the floor. Sweetwater hears him groan, then comes another silence, broken at last by the sound of his body falling back upon the bed and the troubled ejaculation of "Good God!" wrung from lips no torture could have forced into complaint under any day-time conditions.

Sweetwater continued to listen, but he had heard all, and after some few minutes longer of fruitless waiting, he withdrew from his post. The episode was over. He would hear no more that night.

Was he satisfied? Sweetwater imagined the scene—saw the figure of Brotherson hesitating at the top of the stairs—saw hers advancing from the writing-room, with startled and uplifted hand—heard the music—the crash of that great finale—and decided, without hesitation, that the words he had just heard were indeed the thoughts of that moment. "Edith, you know I promised you—" What had he promised? What she received was death! Had this been in his mind? Would this have been the termination of the sentence had he wakened less soon to consciousness and caution?

Sweetwater dared to believe it.

Could it be? Was it he who was dreaming now, or was the event of the night a mere farce of his own imagining? Mr. Brotherson was whistling in his room, gaily and with ever increasing verve, and the tune which filled the whole floor with music was the same grand finale from William Tell which had seemed to work such magic in the night. As Sweetwater caught the mellow but indifferent notes sounding from those lips of brass, he dragged forth the music-box he held hidden in his coat pocket, and flinging it on the floor stamped upon it.

"The man is too strong for me," he cried. "His heart is granite; he meets my every move. What am I to do now?"

Buffalo Street Car Strike Is Growing Serious.

MUCH BLOODSHED REPORTED

City Under Control of the Militia May Have the Entire State Guard of New York Quartered Upon It Before the Trouble Is Ended—Among Victims of Firing of Troops Was a Woman Who Was Shot Through the Back.

Buffalo, N. Y., April 10.—Continuing disorder marks the streetcar strike. In spite of the urgent requests of Mayor Furhmann and the pleadings of the chamber of commerce, which represents practically every business and professional man in Buffalo, the officers of the International Railway company remain stubborn. They refuse to abandon efforts to operate cars until peace has been fully restored and to submit to arbitration. As the result of this attitude of the company it is clearly apparent that it will be necessary to summon additional troops to guard the company's property. It is expected that the Seventy-first and Seventh regiments of New York city will be ordered out today and Major General O'Ryan says if necessary he will call the entire state guard, numbering 18,000 men. There are 3,000 militiamen now on duty.

The strikers have offered to return to work at once providing company will recognize their union and then allow the other differences to be settled by arbitration later. Inasmuch as the strikers have had decidedly the best of the matter thus far, the authorities believe that the company should take steps to meet the men half way.

The company claimed to have 1,500 strike breakers ready for duty, and in spite of the requests of the city officials yesterday afternoon attempted to move cars on the Main street line. The result was similar to that of other days. The mobs attacked the cars, drove off the strike breakers and beat them. The troops charged the crowds and finally drove them back. That ended efforts to move cars for a couple of hours.

Later another attempt was made and the result was more serious. A mob attacked a car near Niagara street viaduct and after stones and missiles had been hurled the militia charged. Someone began firing and the troops in turn opened fire. Mrs. Ida Lorich, twenty-five years old, fell with a bullet through her back. She is dying in the Emergency hospital. Harold Muna, a schoolboy, was shot through the arm. Thomas Amesden was found bleeding in the street from a bayonet wound in the side. His condition is serious. Others were bayoneted and less seriously hurt. In a similar riot a few blocks south an unidentified man was stabbed with a bayonet in the hands of a soldier and terribly wounded.

After that the company drew the few cars back to the barns and made no further attempt to move cars. Then the troops were called from the downtown section and assembled around the car barns, where it had been reported an attack would be made by the strikers and their sympathizers.

DISCUSSED TARIFF BILL

President Went Right to Capitol to Talk With the Committee.

Washington, April 10.—President Wilson went to the president's room at the capitol yesterday afternoon and discussed the tariff bill for an hour and a half with the ten Democratic members of the senate finance committee. At the conclusion of the conference he announced that he hoped that the meeting would be repeated often in the future. It was the first visit of this character by a president since Lincoln's time. The president explained he was not unaware of the fact that he was introducing an innovation, but that he believed it would work out satisfactorily in the end.

After allowing for all possible delay the president and his advisers reached the conclusion that the bill can be put through the senate before July 1, and finally go to the president before Aug. 1.

ALIEN LAND LEGISLATION

Administration Still Concerned With California's Problem.

Washington, April 10.—At the White House it is stated that the administration is not ready to announce its policy for handling the situation growing out of the proposed alien land legislation now pending before the California legislature which is aimed to prevent Japanese from owning or leasing property in that state. It was said the president and his advisers will be governed by further investigations and new developments. It was added that the administration does not intend to make any move in the matter immediately, but that President Wilson certainly does not intend to ignore the protest already made by Baron Chinda.

The will of James McCrea, former president of the Pennsylvania railroad, who died recently, leaves an estate valued at "$50,000 and upward" to the members of his family.

STORY UNIQUE IN ANNALS OF CRIME

New York Authorities Interested In This Tale.

COLLEGE MAN GOES WRONG

Joseph Young, Latin Scholar and Singer in the Choir of a Fashionable Church, Found Diversion and Excitement in Organizing and Leading Gang of Auto Bandits Whose Operations Have Been Checked.

New York, April 10.—The choir singer and Latin scholar who turned thief and who robbed for his pals when their sisters were to be married or when their babies were ill, confessed the tale of his crimes to Judge Foster and Assistant District Attorney Bostwick.

As a result of the confession ten men who raided and robbed in stolen autos, and who were banded under the student of Virgil and Cicero, the singer of sacred hymns in a fashionable church, feel that Sing Sing for them is just around the corner. Four were driven to plead guilty along with their chief. Five have decided to go on trial.

The man who confessed has been known in the underworld as Joseph Taylor. His right name is Joseph Young. As told by himself in a forty-page statement to Assistant District Attorney Bostwick, his story is unique in the experience of the district attorney's observers of criminals.

Young comes from a Texas family. He has a college education. When at college the classics charmed him and he came from his campus with something more than "a little Latin and less Greek." Tempted perhaps to air his profundity, he quoted liberally from the Latin poets while confessing his crimes to Mr. Bostwick.

Once out of college he was minded to study law. One night about three years ago he wandered into a saloon in Harlem. The loafers at the bar observed that he had money. He showed foolishly a large roll of bills. They made friends with him.

The next morning he woke up near a boathouse on the Hudson river. A young woman was bending over him. He was sick and dazed. She told him, after hearing his story, that knockout drops had been given to him.

She took him to her apartment and nursed him through a time of illness. She taught him to smoke opium and use drugs. One day his hostess told him she was in danger of being put out of the apartment for failing to pay rent. He asked her how he could make money. He admitted that he did not know how to earn money by work. She told him to steal it and suggested modern improvements. They had read of a taxicab robbery—one of those swift forays in which the robbers suddenly overpowered a victim and whisked away in a motor car. The woman suggested that he could organize a band, use autos and get rich by robbing saloons, restaurants and little shops. He acted on her suggestion.

In saloons and poolrooms he met men that he enlisted in his band. One of them was Charles Lober, a chauffeur. Others were Frank Vivier, Joseph R. O'Connell and Benjamin Gold. They agreed to organize for systematic robbery by the use of taxicabs.

At the head of a band of ten, Young made himself the master. He bought and kept charge of the pistols and blackjacks of the gang. He made himself the chief scout. Prowling around town, he kept his eyes open for places that might contain ready cash. Their robberies never were very productive. Although they made elaborate preparations and went through careful rehearsals, they seldom made more than $50.

"I could never forget that I had been a gentleman," said Young in detailing his career of crime. "Perhaps you can understand what I mean. On one occasion we had planned to rob a store. One of the boys came to me very downhearted. He said, 'Taylor, my sister is to be married tomorrow. If the cops got me in this thing it would be pretty tough for her, wouldn't it? Can't you let me out of this job?'"

"I told him to run along and make his sister's wedding a merry one. I took his place—although I hadn't meant to have a hand in the robbery—and after the split-up I divided my share with him."

"At another time one of my pals told me that his babies were sick and that he had to stay with them and help his wife take care of them. Well, what could a man do? I ordered him to stay at home and I did his work for him, and when we divided the profits I saw that he got a full share."

WILL RENEW ACCUSATIONS

Western Senator Evidently Hasn't Heard the Last of the Case.

Washington, April 10.—Vice President Marshall has returned to the signers the papers presented to him making serious allegations against a western senator for alleged indignities offered a woman. He held that the matter was not privileged for presentation to the senate.

The husband of the woman in the case said he would send every senator a copy of his wife's statement of allegations against the senator with a demand for a senatorial investigation.

THE POPE NOT IN IMMINENT DANGER

Newspaper Reports Declared to Be Exaggerated.

Rome, April 10.—Though the official curtain of the vatican is still down, there is reason to believe that the pope is no worse and possibly he is rather better.

Prof. Marchiava lost his temper when asked for a statement as to the pontiff's condition. He denounced hotly what he called the exaggerated newspaper reports and said it was an outrage to spread rumors of the pope's death when he was suffering only from a relapse of influenza which would not be serious if it were not for the patient's age. The rumors of the pope's death to which the doctor referred were sent out from Paris. Prof. Marchiava refused to make any further statement.

The pope's sisters and his niece do not seem to be distressed and have told friends that the pope has no fever. Dr. Amici assured inquirers that there was no immediate danger of death.

CONFESSED CANNIBALISM

Fugitives From French Penal Settlement Have Terrible Experience.

Cayenne, French Guiana, April 10.—Four convicts, Mouillard, Rachereau, Fossey and Marchaval, escaped from the penal settlement here and fled into the jungle, whence they expected to be able to reach the gold fields and from there get back to Europe. They lost their way and were starving. Marchaval fell ill and the others killed him. They then roasted and ate the body. Afterward the remaining three reached the river, seized and provisioned a boat and sailed toward the sea. The boat was wrecked in a tempest at the mouth of the Maroni river and the three men were recaptured. They confessed to cannibalism.

STARVATION FACES MANY

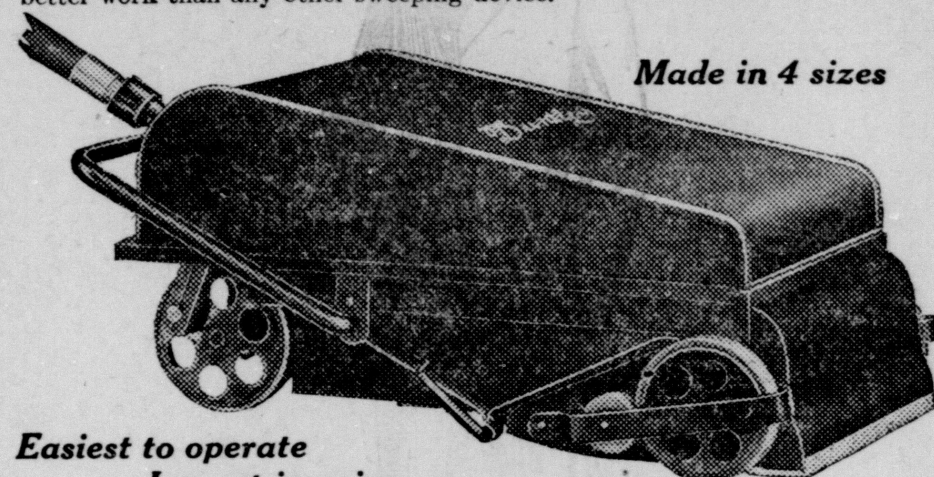

Pitiful Destitution Reported at Points Along Green River.

Evansville, Ind., April 10.—The government provision boat Cherokee, which arrived here with a cargo of provisions and clothing, sent rations to towns up the river, and then left for points up Green river, where many towns are reported under water and many people are starving. Government officials here are of the opinion that property loss from the flood between this city and Cairo, Ill., will be over $10,000,000. The Ohio river here is falling slowly.

Make the Man Who Sells You a Buggy Show You Why you should buy the one he wants to sell you. Don't buy it just because he tells you it's made of second growth hickory and has a plugless yellow poplar body and full wrought gear. It may have, but if it has he can show you, so you will know beyond any doubt that it is made of the material he represents it to be made of and if he won't show you, you are justified in doubting his word, because any buggy built of this kind of material can be demonstrated in a way that will leave no doubt in your mind as to workmanship and material if it is built by men who know how to build buggies. If you are going to buy a buggy, take the time to visit our sample floor and let us show you how to find out what is beneath the paint on a buggy. We carry a complete line of buggies of all styles and if you are in the market a little time spent in our store will put you in a position to make a wise selection, whether you buy your buggy here or elsewhere. Get what you pay for when you buy your next buggy. There is a way to tell and we will show you how. Remember we sell the buggies that stay on the road longest and we guarantee every vehicle to be just as we represent it to you.

"MR. BOB", FARCE WINS APPROVAL

Capable Cast of Seven High School Students Interpret Comedy With Great Success.

AUDIENCE KEPT IN UPROAR

Play Will be Repeated Tonight and it Merits a Crowded House.

"Mr. Bob," a screaming two-act farce with puzzling situations as interpreted and acted by seven high school students, thoroughly entertained a crowd of some two or three hundred people in the assembly room of the Graham high school building last night. The play will be repeated tonight.

The laughs were many, the fun was uproarious, many of the lines were extremely humorous and the unusual situations were carried out by a very competent cast.

Mr. Bob is, but he isn't. The confusion of the identity of this fine "gentleman", who doesn't exist except in the minds of two or three, furnishes the foundation for the amusing farce. Louis Hiner has a series of cognomens in the belief of as many people, the most persistent of which in sticking to him is Mr. Bob.

Miss Rebecca Luke, spinster,—Miss Bessie Bates—has a hobby for destitute cats. Miss Luke's hobby knows no bounds, to wit: she resolved to tear out all the partitions on the second floor, put in a glass roof and make an ideal place for homeless kitties.

The spinster realizes it's all a hobby—and by the way Miss Bates is a very fine spinster—and she tries to keep it a secret from her nephew,—Orlando Simms—and her cousin, Katherine—Josephine Kelley. But Miss Luke confides in her servants, Patty—Katherine Goehring—and Jenkins—Fred Beale—from a fine family and proud of his butlership, and thereby hangs much of the mirth in the tale.

But there are further complications. Katherine has a college chum, Marion—Lillian Hurst—who Katherine calls Bob. Mr. Robert Brown—Lewis Hiner—clerk for the law firm of Benson & Benson, who are arranging for the home for destitute cats, is excepted, and his arrival is known only to the spinster aunt and her servants. Miss Katherine refers to her friend as Bob and the natural presumption of her cousin is that Bob is a boy. He makes preparations for his reception.

The arrival of "Mr. Bob" is fraught with interest to the whole household. Katherine's chum reaches the place first and has been made comfortable in her room when Mr. Robert Brown, arrives to fulfil his mission of the law. The developments are as probable and as possible as most of the farces seen on the professional stage.

Much of the succeeding events center about the young law clerk who has to deny every few minutes that he is some new personage. Lunches are forced upon him with each succeeding introduction until he is overwhelmed with eating. He always attempts an explanation which is never allowed.

The cast is very capable and it would be unjust to set out the merits of anyone over that of another. Most of the comedy centers in the characters of the maid and the butler. Fred Beale and Katherine Goehring deserve much credit for their interpretation of the parts. The maid aspires to the ballet, raves about her Romeo, sputters about McDuff, Macbeth and some more of Shakespeare's "writings" and climaxes her mixture of dramatic art and cats by stowing two kittens in a hand bag which her mistress' nephew carries off to town. Fred Beale, with his customary objections to every order and his subsequent acquiescence, was an admirable butler—as stiff and straight-laced as possible.

The striking characteristic of Miss Josephine Kelley's was her voice. She spoke with a mellow richness that was appealing, and her enunciation was so careful and distinct that she could always be heard above the uproar of humorous situations. Orlando Simms carried the part of the young college man well and Lewis Hiner as the harried legal clerk with so many names could hardly have been better. Miss Lillian Hurst, the chum of Miss Katherine's compared favorably with the rest of the cast.

The credit for training the students belongs to Miss Anna Robinette, instructor in English. The high school orchestra, a very capable organization, furnished the music. The improvised stage furnished ample room.

pressure against it and could not spread to all the mains of the city, consequently was confined only to that portion of the mains. Immediately the mains in that part of the city were drained or "blowed out," as is the expression used by the city employees. Then the water was clear and has been ever since.

"Forty to sixty pounds pressure forcing water out of the main would surely free them from all infected water when allowed to flow for five or six hours. In view of these facts it is my opinion that the city water is now good for domestic use.

"As a matter of satisfaction the water will be examined by the state at once and a report made. This opinion of the city water being good for domestic use was made without the knowledge of the board and is my own private expression, made after considering all the facts.

"As a precautionary measure the board thinks it advisable to boil the water until the state reports on the same. Water from dug wells and driven wells under twenty-five feet in depth should be boiled many months yet.

"The board wants to take this opportunity to warn against foul cellars, cess pools and vaults and accumulation of filth and slime as it has been washed over the city and settled in all low places. The dust and dirt now blowing about is the most dangerous we have had because it is the washings from the year's accumulated filth. The warning is clean up," Dr. J. G. Lewis, secretary of the city board of health.

FRANK NEAL SUFFERS LOSS.

Mrs. Ida Wilkinson has received newspapers from Byron, Ohio, the home of Frank Neal, formerly of the Gem Milling company of this city and well known here, telling of the heavy damage done there by the flood. Mr. Neal was the heaviest loser in the town. His home and two mills were badly damaged, but his family is safe.
